The Postgraduate Programs in Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy

We offer five advanced training programs for psychologists and other doctoral-level mental health professionals, and master's-level mental health professionals who are licensed for private practice: a one-year program in psychoanalytic psychotherapy; a four-year program in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy; a three-year program in child, adolescent, and family psychotherapy; a two-year program in group psychotherapy; and a two-year program in marriage and couple therapy. There is also a one-year postgraduate program in psychodynamic school psychology with an optional second year for certified school psychologists. Each program integrates theoretical and clinical seminars with supervised clinical experience. We are committed to each candidate's professional and personal growth. Candidates are encouraged and assisted to develop their private practices.

For more information contact:

Mrs. Marge Burgard (516) 877-4835 or

Mary Beth Cresci Ph.D., Director (516) 877-4826

The Postgraduate Psychotherapy Center

The Postgraduate Psychotherapy Center provides affordable psychotherapy and psychoanalysis by licensed mental health professionals with advanced postgraduate clinical training. Patients are seen in private offices of clinicians throughout Long Island and the New York City metropolitan area. Clinical specializations such as couples therapy, child and adolescent psychotherapy, and group therapy, among others, are also available upon request.

Symposium Theme

Clinicians have traditionally emphasized the importance of early parent-child interaction, with minimal importance placed on the effect siblings can have on each other. Family therapy has customarily applied a wider lens that encompassed the complex interactions of all family members but rarely recognized the unique nature of siblings as a distinct and powerful subgroup. This symposium will examine the impact of sibling relationships on couple relationships. Dr. Jody J. Leader will present her paper, "Ghosts of Early Sibling Relationships in Couples Therapy," followed by the screening of Sweetie, a film directed by Australian auteur Jane Campion, that is a patchwork quilt of moments, scenes, and melodramatic conflicts that depict the intense and intricate nature of sibling relationships. This film has won the AFI award and the Independent Spirit Award and was nominated for the Golden Palm Award at the Cannes Film Festival. A panel of distinguished clinicians with expertise in sibling dynamics and marital treatment will then discuss the implications of this perspective on the treatment of couples.

Conference objectives

At the end of this conference participants will have a working knowledge of:

- The importance of sibling relationships in partner choice
- Partner-partner sibling transference in psychodynamic couples therapy
- How childhood sibling roles are re-enacted with adult romantic partners
- The application of this theoretical perspective to clinical work with couples

Participants

Michael Kahn Ph.D., ABPP is the co-founder of the doctoral program, and professor emeritus of clinical psychology at the University of Hartford in Hartford, Connecticut. He is currently clinical associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Connecticut Health Center, an advanced candidate at the Massachusetts Institute for Psychoanalysis, and in private practice in Hartford. He is co-author of The Sibling Bond (Basic Books, 1982, 1997) co-editor of Siblings in Therapy (W.W. Norton, 1988), and over 20 other papers on sibling relationships. His work has been translated and published in five languages.

Sharon Kozberg Ph.D. is a faculty member in the Adelphi Postgraduate Program in Marriage and Couple Therapy and on the faculty of the Advanced Specialization in Couple and Family Therapy at NYU Postdoctoral Programs in Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy. She contributed the chapter, "Therapy with Divorced and Divorcing Parents," in Parent-Focused Therapy: A Casebook, (Jason Aronson, in press), and has a private practice in Manhattan.

Jody J. Leader Ph.D. is a supervising staff psychologist, Boston Institute for Psychotherapy, and an instructor and supervisor in the Harvard Medical School. She contributed the chapter "Ghosts of Early Sibling Relationships in Couples Therapy" to Couple Attachments: Theoretical and Clinical Studies, (Karnac, in press), and maintains a private practice in Brookline, Massachusetts.

Arthur G. Mones Ph.D., ABPP is the coordinator of family therapy training at the center for psychological services, St. John's University, and is a member of the faculty in the Adelphi Postgraduate Program in Marriage and Couple Therapy. He is an AAMFT approved supervisor and has a private practice in Hewlett, Long Island.

Michael D. Zentman Ph.D. is the founder and director of the Adelphi Postgraduate Program in Marriage and Couple Therapy and an associate clinical professor of psychology in the Adelphi Postgraduate Programs in Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy. He is on the faculty at the Training Institute for Mental Health, NYC and has a private practice in Centerport, Long Island and in Manhattan. He contributed the chapter "Family Therapy" in Anxiety and Related Disorders: A Handbook, Benjamin Wolman M.D. and George Stricker Ph.D.

The Postgraduate Program in Marriage and Couple Therapy

The Marriage and Couple Therapy Program provides clinicians with a theoretical foundation in psychoanalytic and systemic treatment as the basis for more advanced clinical work with couples. Several contemporary theories are addressed, including object relations, relational, interpersonal, structural, Bowenian, and strategic. The program values an integrative perspective and encourages candidates to explore the development of their own emerging style during the two years of course work, supervision, personal treatment, and clinical practice.

Admission: A doctoral or master's degree in a mental health field, as well as licensure for private practice, is required.

Applications are being accepted for September 2007.
